Kingston and Freedom

Kingston was the cradle of New York State and in connection with the appearance here of the New York State Freedom Train on August 26 and 27, Captain A. S. Hickey, U. S. Navy, Retired, who is president of the Ulster County Historical Society, has prepared local historical data, which The Freeman will publish in a series of articles:

On the 11th of September 1674 Governor Francis Lovelace who succeeded Colonel Richard Nicolls when the English captured New Netherlands in 1684, ordered the palisades moved to include a new addition to the south and to fill in the spaces at the sides (east and west). His order specified that the "Burial Place be Impaled" as well as the Town House near Pearl street, also known as the Dominie's house. The plan of the village as reconstructed and included in New York State documents contained seven lanes four of which are now North River, Green, Main and Clinton avenue on the outskirts of the perimeter while Fair (then Dover) Wall and Crown streets were interior passages. Except for Dover street, these bisected the village from north to south. The Burial and Church were "impaled" inside the fortified area in the southern part of the village near the corner to and to the east of the "Strand Gate." The only known plan of Kingston now in existence is dated 1695 and faces pages 85 in volume 13 of the "Documents Treating of the early History and Settlement of the Towns along the Hudson and Mohawk Rivers" Albany 1881. Bronze plaques erected in Kingston through the efforts of the Daughters of the American Revolution show this outline. The final area might be called "C" so that it might be said that Kingston prior to 1700 was built in three parts. No record can be found indicating when the stockade was abandoned but many references are made to repairs and the difficulties experienced in forcing the inhabitants to take care of it.

The first and second Esopus Indian Wars between the years 1659-1660 and 1683-1684 were bloody and savage. Many of the Dutch settlers and soldiers were killed but far more Indians lost their lives. In fact the Esopus Indians were practically exterminated. Among the Dutch military officers who took part in the second Esopus War was Nicholas Stillwell, the ancestor of the famous General Joseph W. "Vinegar Joe" Stillwell of World War 2. Although these wars were terribly destructive and many white people were murdered there seems to be no record of "scalping" which apparently was unknown until the French and Indian War. Men from Ulster county have taken part in all wars since that day in July, 1740, when the colony appropriated 40,000 pounds "for carrying on an expedition against Canada," until the end of World War 2. During the Revolution Brigadier General James Clinton of Ulster county commanded the First and Second Regiments of the Line of New York and while at Yorktown received the British colors surrendered by Lord Cornwallis. It was Brigadier General Severn B. Sharpe who as an aide on the staff of General Grant delivered Grant's message to General Lee concerning the disposition of the arms surrendered by the Confederates at Appomattox Court House, Virginia.

The name of Kingston which replaced Wiltwyck was designated by the Colonial Council of Governor Lovelace in 1689, but for a time during the years 1673-74 was called Swanburg when the colony was held temporarily by the Dutch. There are several explanations of the origin of the name Kingston but none can be authenticated. The minutes of the Colonial Council simply state that the name of Wiltwyck was changed to Kingston. Nothing is said concerning the ancestral estate of the Lovelace family at Kingston-on-Thames, or Kingston-on-Hull, or the family of the Dukes of Kingston; one is at liberty to make his own choice.

The Dutch at first lived in log houses with wooden chimneys until such chimneys were forbidden. Then as more permanent houses were built they were constructed of stone usually one and a half stories high with the eaves overhanging the lanes where the passersby were drenched by the sheets of water that descended during a rain storm until birch bark was adopted for gutters or metal ones came into use. When the British controlled New York during the Revolution the State Senate and Assembly moved finally to Kingston. The Assembly occupied the Bogardus Tavern then on the corner of Maiden Lane and Fair street. The Senate met in the present "Senate House" on the corner of Clinton Avenue and North Front street and it was there that the First Senate of New York met and signed the First Constitution of New York State in 1777. This is the oldest public building in the United States and was built in 1676. It is said that the British were particularly annoyed because of these happenings and the fact that Governor George Clinton took the oath of office in this city that General Guk Vaughan on 16 October 1777 burned the entire village. Only the Van Steenburgh house escaped the flames. Fortunately the fire did not entirely consume the "Senate House" which was restored and today is an important museum of the State of New York filled with furniture suitable for a one and a half story house of that period.

Early colonial families often made nails by hand to earn extra money.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Aug. 2.—Mr. and Mrs. Larry Homan and children of Long Island spent Sunday and Monday at the Ridge Road bungalow of their friends, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Loos of Ingwood. Larry comes here several times a year to do a little fishing and hunting.

Mrs. Edwin K. Berg was hostess at a dinner Sunday evening to Mr. and Mrs. Burton S. Tandy and daughter, Patricia, who with Sonia Berg had returned from a sojourn of two weeks at the Tandy place in West Brooksville, Me.

Mrs. Bauliste Nadin is spending some time at her farmhouse in the Coons neighborhood of Shokan.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Carpenter, New York couple, who have been occupying the James Carpenter rented bungalow during July, discovered an unwelcome intruder in their upstairs bedroom one evening last week, to wit: a four-foot, mottled snake of undetermined classification. Tom killed the reptile and kept it a day or two in an unsuccessful effort to get some local naturalist to give it a name. But whether the snake was poisonous or not, or how it was able to get upstairs, the Carpenters feel this is carrying neighborliness a bit too far.

William Ruckert and family are vacationing at the village center of Willie's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ruckert.

Elizabeth (Mrs. George) Barclay

mentioned here as having been presented with a quilt top by the Ashokan W.S.C.S., really was the donor and gave, not one, but several quilts to the Methodist society of which she is the oldest member.

Birthdays coming on this week include that of Mrs. Maynard DeLong who with her husband, a War 2 veteran, and small daughter Diana, resides on the George Hauser farm along the Ontonagon Trail. She was born in New Rochelle; graduated from the nursing class of Valhalla Hospital, lived in New Haven for a time, and came here in October, 1948 from Zena. Mrs. DeLong also has four sons, the oldest of whom, Joe is a U. S. Marine.

HIGH TENSION 'SUCCESS'

We've been hearing for years that many of our top business executives kill themselves with strain of overwork. Perhaps most of us have felt this situation was just an unfortunate accompaniment of modern living about which nothing could be done.

But now comes a suggestion that this tense pace is neither normal nor necessary, even for today. Writing in Collier's magazine, Howard Whitman quotes psychiatrists as declaring it is an abnormal, neurotic drive rather than brains, energy or ambition that leads a man to punish himself with work and possibly "succeed himself to death."

Business leaders can amass plenty of evidence to support their contention that their problems and burdens have mounted to dizzy heights in the last two decades, and that their own tensions have risen in proportion. The doctors, however, decline to admit that most executives have to work as hard as they often do.

They insist that the men who let work dominate their lives are out of balance in some way. They say some have a distorted idea of life that allows no place for fun and rest. Some men simply don't know how to use free time and tie themselves to work to avoid boredom. Others are ridden by fears—of failure, and competing executives, of insecurity they often can't define. So these high voltage individuals focus, so hard on making a living that they forget all about making a life. They deprive their families of badly needed companionship and guardianship. They lose the matchless riches of leisure, the fulfillment of spiritual wants that can't be satisfied in the grubbing world of work. And into the bargain, they kill themselves. In so doing, they rob business of brain power, training and leadership.

Thus they defeat the very purposes for which they are supposedly slaving. The doctors' advice to business executives is to grow up, to stop racing each other to the grave and grasping for the symbols of life instead of life itself.

Any sensible person would be likely to agree with Dr. Leo H. Bartemeier of Detroit, whom Whitman quotes as follows: "The grown-up man has his prestige and security within him. He doesn't have to make a million dollars. He doesn't need the biggest car. His joy comes from being a person, a fully realized human being."

New York will hold a senatorial election in the fall, but the candidates will not be Thomas E. Dewey and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. Both have declared themselves out of the race. A Roosevelt-Dewey contest would surely draw the headlines.

COUNTING ARMIES

A proposal has been made that the United Nations set up a special commission to collect information on the armed forces and armaments of all the nations of the world. In supporting the proposal before the Commission for Conventional Armaments, where it was raised, the United States delegate suggested that the principal value of the arms census would be psychological; it might represent a turn in the tide of international cynicism.

It always has been customary for each nation to keep to itself the size and disposition of its armies and navies and the kinds of weapons and defense in use. It has been correspondingly customary for each nation to employ spies to try continuously to learn these things about others. A breach in this international secrecy was made briefly in the period of disarmament agreements following the First World War. The disarmament plan failed partly because some nations held back some of their secrets, partly because some nations did not scrupulously observe the agreements. The old secrecy and spying returned.

A world arms census now, under official sanction of the United Nations, might turn the nations again into the path of voluntarily revealing their military strength. The revelations themselves might not be startling, since spying is still reasonably efficient.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

WHY SAY IT LATE?

The British attack on the Morgenthau Plan is late. Also Winston Churchill's contention that he had to accept the Morgenthau Plan because Roosevelt wanted it, also is late and lame. Churchill seems to explain all his errors of historical judgment on the ground that he was dependent, as his country was, upon the bounty of Roosevelt and had to go along with him no matter how well he knew that Roosevelt was wrecking the world. It is too late to say that, in private or in public.

On March 27, 1947, I wrote that the Morgenthau Plan was not a design for permanent peace, nor was it in harmony with the Atlantic Charter, nor did it serve the United States. It was a proposal for a Carthaginian peace in the interest of Soviet Russia. In his program to prevent Germany from starting a world war 3, Morgenthau proposes 'the total destruction of the whole German armament industry, and this is the gist of it—the removal or destruction of other key industries which are basic to military strength.' Our own experience in the last war proves that this means all industry.

Today the destroyed German industry would be invaluable to us both as a peacetime productive and potential war agency. A good part of the money that the American taxpayer is pouring into the Marshall Plan might have been saved were we able to utilize more effectively the German industrial base.

The economic cooperation administration reports on this subject:

"Pre-war Germany was the most powerful industrial country in Europe. Germany's industrial pre-eminence was based principally upon the skill of her population rather than upon her natural resources, although she ranked first in the world in the production of brown coal, second in the production of steel and electric power and third in the output of 'hard coal'."

Following the surrender in May, 1945, the German economy was in a state of almost complete collapse, due not so much to the physical destruction during the war as to the complete disorganization of economic life and of political institutions. Industrial production was at a virtual standstill.

It was at the moment of Potsdam that the United States should have realized that unless Germany's industrial base could quickly and efficiently be restored, this country would be loaded down with the cost not only of supplying Germany but also those countries in Europe which had become dependent upon Germany for manufactured goods.

Two factors stood in the way of a rational approach to the problem: One was the Morgenthau Plan to which Roosevelt and Churchill had agreed at Quebec, without the knowledge of their cabinets; the other was JCS 1067, an order issued by the joint chiefs of staff for the occupation of Germany, the Morgenthau Plan Herbert Hoover, in 1947, said of JCS 1067:

"We can keep Germany in these economic chains, but it will also keep Europe in rags."

The United States, through loans, Lend-Lease, surplus supplies and relief, in the last two years, has spent, or pledged itself to spend, over fifteen billions of dollars in support of civilians in foreign lands. Even so, we have not had the resources for, nor can our taxpayers bear, a continuation of burdens at such a rate.

"There is only one path to recovery in Europe. That is production. The whole economy of Europe is interlinked with German economy through the exchange of raw materials and manufactured goods. The productivity of Europe cannot be restored without the restoration of Germany as a contributor to the productivity."

No one can read the Morgenthau Plan or his book, "Germany Is Our Problem," without reaching the conclusion that his object was to aid Russia. Section 14 is definitely what the Russians have been clamoring for since Potsdam—namely, that the United States get out of Germany and leave that country to Russian control.

In this connection, I call attention to an ECA report:

"It was the expressed intention in the Potsdam agreement that the four occupation zones of Germany were to be treated as a single economic unit. It has never been possible to obtain Soviet assent to the implementation of this intention."

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

LEAVE HOSPITAL TOO SOON

During World War I when I was Senior Medical Officer at a base hospital, there were patients who seemed to be at a standstill as far as their physical condition was concerned. If I gave them a pass to go home for several days, they returned to the hospital improved physically and mentally, and anxious to go before the Pension Board for discharge. Getting home, seeing how their family was getting along, seeing their need of him, aroused the patient to his responsibility and he returned to the hospital.

One of the great problems our hospitals for tuberculosis are finding is that so many patients leave the hospital too soon. This is perhaps only natural because a patient entering a tuberculosis sanitarium must rest, bed rest at first, and then very slowly and gradually the rest period daily is shortened and some activity permitted.

An editorial in the Canadian Medical Association Journal states that a recent study of veterans' hospitals in the United States shows that 54 per cent of discharges of tuberculosis patients was "irregular," that is without medical sanction. Two years previously it had been about 73 per cent. No other disease causes such a large percentage to leave the hospital prematurely.

The reason why tuberculosis patients leave hospital too soon is because of the slow rate of progress in obtaining the "cure." There is no way of informing the patient just how long he must remain in hospital and yet he is discharged from hospital too soon, the causes are "outside" the hospital and have to do with the patient's personal, social, and economic life.

From the above information we can realize the value of a competent social worker in keeping patient and family in "trustful" touch with each other, filling in gaps and helping to solve home difficulties so that the patient will not leave hospital too soon.

The Common Cold

Never neglect the common cold as it may often be the forerunner of other more dangerous conditions. Send 10 cents and a 3-cent stamp, to cover cost of handling and mailing, to The Bell Syndicate, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

But if the census plan should "break the ice" of military secrecy, something would have been gained. If the nations ever reach the point where they are not afraid to tell what arms and armies they have, then the world will not be far from being ready to lay down its arms.

Getting Into the Act

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

Washington—Newspapers carried a little note about President Truman driving his own car to Leesburg, Va., the other day, but there was no other explanation of why he went there. Here is the reason why.

Some weeks ago, Sen. Cabot Lodge, Massachusetts Republican was visiting Gen. George Marshall at Leesburg, when the ex-secretary of state showed him the grave of Col. Edward D. Baker, former U. S. senator from Oregon, killed in action during the Civil War.

The stone marker was covered with moss. Vines and vegetation had grown up over the spot, and General Marshall remarked to the senator from Massachusetts that it was a shame a senator from Oregon who had fought so gallantly should be so ungalantly remembered.

Later, General Marshall reported this to President Truman, and some days later, Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon got a message from the President telling him that a former Oregon senator lay unremembered at Leesburg, and suggesting that they both visit the grave.

Morse accepted. But before leaving, he sent over to the Library of Congress to find out more about Colonel Baker. The library reported that he was killed at Ball's Bluff, Va., but buried at Lone Mountain Cemetery, San Francisco. Furthermore, the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, who was wounded in the same battle, described in one of his books how Senator Baker's body was carried back to the west coast—at that time an unheard-of trip for a war casualty.

Truman as a Chauffeur
 Senator Morse, however, had no opportunity to break this news to President Truman until the two got in the White House car—a Lincoln—for their drive to Leesburg.

Their first conversation was about the fact that the President was driving himself, the senator discreetly inquiring when the President had last driven. Mr. Truman admitted he hadn't driven for a couple of years, but said he still remembered how. As the trip continued, it was evident that whatever the President lacked in skill as a chauffeur, he made up for in zestful driving. With the secret service men sitting nervously in the rear, the President enjoyed every minute of it.

Finally, Senator Morse broke the news.

"I looked up Senator Baker of Oregon," he said, "and the Library of Congress informs me that when he was shot at Ball's Bluff, he was buried at San Francisco."

The Presidential car nearly swerved off the road.

Recovering, Mr. Truman said that General Marshall would feel bad about bringing them all the way to Leesburg for nothing. "We mustn't hurt his feelings," he added. "You leave this to me."

So, after lunch, as General Marshall escorted the party three miles away to the supposed grave of Senator Baker, Mr. Truman broke the news that he wasn't buried there after all. General Marshall wasn't entirely convinced, however, and led them to the grave.

There they found that the Library of Congress was right. The tombstones were merely a marker stating that "Col. Baker was killed here, Oct. 21, 1861." There was no indication that he was buried there. In fact, the bodies of 64 other Federal soldiers had been removed to a nearby grave.

General Marshall felt bad about bringing the President and Senator Morse down to Leesburg on a wild-goose chase, but they didn't feel that way at all. They were delighted to have the excuse to get away from Washington, and they arranged to have a garden party up the spot where Colonel Baker fell. No new monument was necessary.

Not—Senator Baker, born in England, served in the House of Representatives from Illinois, then moved to Oregon about the time of the gold rush and was elected to the U. S. Senate from Oregon in 1859. He enlisted in the 71st Pennsylvania volunteers, and was temporarily commissioned a major general.

Secret Capitol Cocktail Lounge
 The story has never been told how the Democrats discovered a secret cocktail lounge in the capitol building after they took over from the Republicans.

The lounge was fixed up by ex-Senator Carly Brooks of Illinois and his political protégé, Ex-Sergeant-at-Arms Edward McGinnis, in one of the historic rooms of the capitol where the Supreme Court first met. They cleared out the stately, historic furnishings and turned it into a gay-colored cocktail lounge, incongruous and out of place in the capitol.

How much it cost the taxpayers to paint, decorate, and furnish the Brooks private lounge will probably never be known. It is not simple for the ex-Senator from Illinois to keep this secret, since he was chairman of the Senate Rules Committee and in charge of the Senate wing of the capitol.

But when Brooks was defeated last November, Senator Carl Hayden of Arizona, the new rules chairman, inherited all his keys. That's how the Democrats discovered the secret lounge.

Telephoning Senator Scott Lucas, majority leader of the Senate, Hayden said: "I have a surprise for you."

Later he took Lucas to the hideaway, unlocked the door, and announced:

"Look what I have discovered! I don't want to get caught with a room like this on my hands, so I'm turning it over to you. It's only poetic justice that you should get it."

Truman's Long Memory
 White-haired, 75-year-old Mamie Karst, mother of Missouri Congressman Ray Karst, was one of the first political leaders in St. Louis to come out for Truman in 1934, when he was elected to the Senate. Calling at the White House with her congressman son and family, she asked the President:

"Do you remember me?" exclaimed Truman, who hadn't seen her since 1934. "How could I ever forget you? If it hadn't been for you and a few other loyal supporters in St. Louis, I might not even have won the primary nomination. All the experts said that my primary opponent, Jack Cochran (late Representative John Cochran) had St. Louis all sewed up."

After a friendly visit, the President gave Karst's children, Mary Jane, 9, and Ronnie, 7, each a shiny, new ball-point pencil. But he admonished them: "Don't let any F.B.I. men see you with these pencils. They might put you in jail."

Believing him, the saucer-eyed youngsters quickly hid the pencils. They were inscribed: "I swiped this from Harry S. Truman."

Religious Groups Are Blocking Passage of Bill to Give Aid to Education

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 3.—Misunderstanding among religious groups is blocking the passage of the bill in Congress to appropriate $300,000,000 to aid education. The controversy between Cardinal Spellman and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has served to confuse rather than to clarify the issue—so much so that members of Congress, fearing political reprisals at the polls from one group or the other, would prefer to see nothing done at this session.

The points of difference are by no means simple. One faction says that public funds, derived from taxes, shall not be used to support pupils in private or parochial schools.

Another faction says that the parents of parochial school pupils shall not be asked to pay state taxes to support public schools and then be denied federal aid for their own schools.

A third view is that federal money spent in private schools means a mixing of church and state.

A fourth view is that failure to allow public money to be spent for the aid of parochial schools is a discrimination against religious schools, especially as the money sought is to pay for non-religious textbooks.

The average citizen may well be bewildered by these conflicting approaches. Certain facts, however, are not apparently widely known.

Thus, for instance, it may come as a surprise to various groups to learn that the federal government has for some time now been spending public funds on students attending parochial schools. It is not novel for the federal government or for the states to do this. Here are some of the facts bearing on this phase:

1. School lunches are provided through the U. S. Department of Agriculture to needy children in both public and parochial schools. To finance this, the federal government appropriated this year $83,500,000. The federal fund is matched dollar for dollar by the states.

2. Conway Addresses Local Lions Club

"The public employee is entitled to the highest degree of respect and esteem," J. Edward Conway, president of the State Civil Service Commission, told members of the Kingston Lions Club at their regular meeting at the Governor Clinton Hotel Tuesday noon.

"By and large, I have found civil servants most conscientious, industrious and loyal." Those are the conclusions which former Ulster County Judge Conway said he reached after six years with the Civil Service Commission. He urged his listeners not to condemn the 99 per cent of efficient workers because of a possible one per cent who do not measure up to their jobs.

Judge Conway traced briefly the development of the merit system in this state because "it is tremendously important that we have full and complete understanding of the merit system. This government has no other character than that which you and I give it. Public opinion is in control."

Soon after the nation-wide Pendleton Act was adopted, New York state adopted its own merit system by placing its civil service under a merit system. "Appointments and promotions in the civil service of the state and civil divisions thereof shall be made according to merit and fitness to be ascertained, so far as practicable, by examination which, so far as practicable, shall be competitive."

One recent advance, instituted since Judge Conway became a commissioner, was the practice of having in-service training and orientation courses for job holders immediately following their appointment. Previously, Conway said, it was the practice to put the new appointee at a desk and expect him to be able to handle the work without instruction.

Speaking on the grading of examinations, Judge Conway explained it is virtually impossible for the examiners to show favoritism toward any one candidate. Each paper is given a number, and when the papers are graded the candidate's name is not even on them. In addition, much of the grading today is done by machine.

Secret identifying marks placed upon an answer sheet by a candidate so that a friend grading the papers might give him a "break" has been tried at times, but is now carefully checked. Judge Conway said, if a mark of this nature is found, it is sufficient evidence to bar the candidate from competition, he said.

Under this state's system of government, there is a flexibility to allow the appointment or election, without civil service examination, of the policy making officials, he pointed out. This, he said, creates one small group of civil servants enjoying tenure to gain control of the government.

Among other advances in the past six years has been an improvement in publicizing the examinations to attract candidates to compete for the jobs available as an "opportunity to dedicate one's lives to the service of their fellow men."

J. Edward Conway was born in Edenville and attended grade school there. After graduating from Kingston High School, he graduated from Fordham Law School with honor in 1924 and became associated with Fowler and Connelly in this city. In 1926 he was appointed clerk of the Children's Court of Ulster county, which capacity he served until 1931, when he was appointed assistant district attorney. He represented this county in the State Assembly (1933-40) and was elected County Judge of the Children's Court in 1940. He was appointed by Governor Thomas E. Dewey to the civil service commission in 1942, 1943, and was subsequently elected president of the commission. He was introduced at the Lions meeting by Harry Gold, program chairman.

Entertainment at Tuesday's meeting of the Lions Club was provided by Dennis, Edward and Michael Magid, youthful television entertainers, who were vacationing at Skivsky's Esopus Lake Hotel.

Billers Brothers, Starring Ki-Gor, Draws Big Houses

Billers Brothers Circus, offering the first wild animal act seen here in a number of years, played to full houses at the municipal stadium, Tuesday afternoon and evening, under the auspices of Wicks Engine Co.

Prince Ki-Gor, true to his theory that the steel arena is no place for prods and cracking pistols, put his six lions through their routine by means of gestures and the spoken word. His only protection was a whip that he snapped occasionally, whenever the big cats were lethargic in their movements.

A modest performer, Ki-Gor advised the audience to keep their eyes on the lions not the trainer, so they could see how well the jungle beasts obeyed their will. The way they went through their act reflected great credit on Prince, who disclaims any trace of royalty.

Not Royal Prince
"It's the name my mother gave me when I was baptized," he told Henry P. Elmhurst of the Kingston Model Railroaders Club as they discussed their mutual hobby. Elmhurst, his wife, Betty, who shares her husband's avocation, and their three small sons were entertained by Ki-Gor between shows at his trailer.

Ki-Gor, an ardent devotee of model railroading, carries his builder's kit while on tour. He was deeply enthused over the model railroad circus display arranged by Elmhurst in Herzog's window on Wall street used to herald the coming of Billers Brothers.

Behind, running a training quarter for lions and other jungle cats at Williamsport, Pa., Ki-Gor operates a lumber camp and trucking business. The tall, dark, muscular lion trainer is of Spanish-Dutch ancestry. He's one of the newest in the circus field, this being his first season on the road. He has, however, appeared at a number of fairs in past years.

All Show Enjoyed
The whole show seemed to please. The Christian troupe of tumblers and riders were generously applauded and the rest of the performers came in for their share. Children, as usual, laughed heartily at the Billers clowns, and the grownups chuckled lustily as well.

All of the well-kept stock of horses, ponies, and elephants went through their routines without a fault.

Marion Knowlton, who resided in Kingston for a time, was unable to appear in the center ring with her elephants because of illness in her family.

Today the circus is in Poughkeepsie and Thursday is scheduled to play, Ellenville.

Russell Street Man Fined in City Court

Jacob Ennist, 53, of 7 Russell street, was arrested early this morning following a complaint to the police that a hedge had been struck at 22 Davis street by a driver who failed to stop.

Ennist was sentenced by City Judge Raymond J. Milno today to 25 days or a $25 fine on a charge of driving while his license was revoked and 10 days or $10 on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. He paid the fines.

A police report at 11:35 p. m. Tuesday said the hedge on the George McCordle property, 22 Davis street, had been struck by a small pick-up truck.

Another report at 1:30 a. m. today, said that Ennist had been arrested on Andrew street near Mary's avenue by Officers Louis Sapp, Jr., and Clarence Stickles and that he had been sleeping in the weeds at the end of Andrew street near the truck which was identified by George McCordle.

Britain Accuses

"to the so-called popular democracies of Eastern Europe."

"This is no doubt one of the main reasons for the tremendous exodus from eastern Europe and the Soviet zone of Germany which we have witnessed in recent years and which still continues—a flight of millions to the west." Why, he asked, should workers flee from "the workers' paradise?"

The council is discussing measures for the abolition of forced labor and the possibilities of making a survey of its extent.

Ex-Convict Held

In 1941, when he was sentenced to 15 months in federal prison as a member of a Westchester bootleg ring which defrauded the government of $750,000 in alcohol taxes.

In 1928 Malone was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for two years for burglary. Two years later he was sentenced to an indeterminate penitentiary term for assault and robbery. In 1934 he was convicted on a policy charge.

Corporal Is Held
Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 3 (AP)—Cpl. James J. Coyle, Jr., of Watertown, Conn., has been charged with manslaughter in the death of Cpl. Wilbert W. Timm of Bowler, Wis., U.S. Air Force headquarters announced today. Timm was fatally injured in scuffle outside an air force club in Wiesbaden July 23. Three other soldiers were injured in connection with the case have been released.

State Is . . .

ness expansion, constant watchfulness is necessary on the part of government, labor and management. A high degree of cooperation by labor and management is especially desirable.

Confident of Cooperation

Dewey said he was confident of the "fullest cooperation of both labor and management."

The committee referred to the wartime stall in improving the state's physical plant and immediate postwar delays because of material shortages and inflated costs.

It said:

"Now, to meet the rising tide of unemployment it is important to go forward with all authorized projects."

"We are fully aware of the fact that skilled workers in the construction trades are employed in good measure during the summer months. The acceleration of public works should be aimed at the fall months."

"Insofar as possible, projects should be given priority in communities and areas that are hardest hit by unemployment."

Dewey said he agreed "wholeheartedly."

The committee lauded the state's "progressive system of social legislation."

It also referred to "substantial evidence of economic strength throughout the state." It listed "increased savings, an expanding private construction program, an excellent labor-management relations board, and the extreme diversification of the state's business and industry."

sought the state's number two office.

In the only Republican primary contest E. Thomas McGuire of Petersburg led Berkeley Williams of Richmond in the race for nomination for lieutenant governor by a narrow margin. Early, though, the returns were far from complete.

Battle's capture of the party nod for governor probably was more of an organization triumph than the total figures indicated.

The primary plank in all the candidates' platforms was more state financial aid for schools. Only on how to get the money was there a difference of opinion. And Edwards, who proposed a two percent general sales tax to bring in $40,000,000 extra a year, was most different from the rest.

This issue became subordinated, however, as the organization pulled out all the stops in changing that musicians' cry. James C. Potillo and other outside labor forces were behind Miller's candidacy.

Miller denied that he had been in contact with any outside labor forces. And for his own part he hit at "vicious machine tactics of the Byrd organization" and promised to set Virginia free of its political yoke.

Family Builds House

Potsdam, N. Y., Aug. 3 (AP)—The Gordon Stone family is building a new home to replace one destroyed by fire last November. With all 15 members of the family pitching in, Stone estimates the eight-room house will cost him about $7,000. Friends tell him he will have a $15,000 house when it is completed. All of the Stone's 13 children, ranging in age from four to 23, are on the job.

Rate Cut . . .

radius of about 400 miles of New York city. This milkshed area includes New York state, Vermont, New Jersey, Connecticut, and parts of Pennsylvania and Massachusetts.

There was no indication that the rate cut would bring any immediate price reduction to consumers.

Milk shipping to the metropolitan area used to be handled by the railroads and trucks in about equal volume. But since the war about 75 per cent has been coming in by truck and only 25 per cent by rail, because of the widening difference between their rates.

The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad is expected to put a similar rate cut into effect August 13, industry spokesmen said.

The Pennsylvania and Erie railroads are reported to be considering following suit.

Former Ellenville

scious Daryoush drove to a real estate office and called police.

Research Assistant Samuel Sher, the husband, a former University of San Francisco student, said he was working as a research assistant in entomology at the Berkeley school while taking a graduate course and he indicated that he and his wife, who were married two years ago, had been having difficulties, but said he was "still in love."

Mrs. Sher was majoring in social welfare and was also a senior.

$30 to $40 a month in Social Security benefits to supplement his company pension—if any. Most of them have few other sources of income, he said.

He gave these figures on total average monthly payments received by retired workers, including what the companies pay, Social Security benefits and other sources:

U. S. steel workers retired since June, 1947—$44.69.
Bethlehem—$78.29.
Republic—$35.70.
Jones and Laughlin—$66.22.

The union is seeking a pension of $125 a month for each worker retiring voluntarily at 65. For those retiring earlier because of disability it seeks $150 a month until they are 65, and $125 a month thereafter.

The steelworkers' "package" demand of 30 cents an hour increase also includes a fourth-hour wage boost of 12 1/2 cents an hour, and social insurance benefits. The present average wage is reported to be $1.65 an hour.

she could with her "two young-est boys."

"I began by learning to drive a car," she says on pages 342 and 343. "I might as well own up at once that I had two accidents. I drove into the stone gate post of the Hyde Park avenue because I tried to turn while going too fast. I backed the entire family down hill, off the road and down a steep bank and came to a stop because I struck a tree which held us as I was driving through a wood road to a picnic. It was pure luck that I did not overturn the car and seriously injure someone. But in both cases, no one was hurt."

She does not give the year in which these two accidents occurred. But by back-tracking from the next page we come to the conclusion that they happened in the summer of 1922. That would have been within the period in which she swore she had had no accidents. On page 344 she writes: "This autumn of 1922 I took Elliott to Groton School. I drove him up myself."

Or pages 342 and 343 she refers to "that summer," and the reference to "this autumn of 1922" seems definitely to put these two smashes in 1922.

The material fact is, however, that this woman with three accidents behind her, by this statement, under oath, tried to give the licensing authorities a false impression that she was a driver of some 25 years' experience who had never had an accident. She had driven thousands of miles. But "I have never had an accident of any kind." She did not appear for personal examination. She was speaking at a luncheon. It seems barely possible that the indefiniteness of the date of the two accidents which are lumped together would still permit them to be placed at a time before 1921. But even so that would still disprove her statement that "I first drove a motor car in 1921." In fact, that one is knocked out by her story of the 1908 smash.

Now this is not a petty matter. This woman is a political force with enormous ambitions. I believe she is a menace, the more so because I derive from her book the impression that she is unscrupulous as to truth, vain and cynical, all with a pretense of exaggerated kindness and humane feeling, which deceives millions of gullible persons.

No truthful, honest, sane person who has had three previous automobile accidents would be able to forget them utterly. Nor would a truthful, honest person resort to any form of language to conceal those pertinent and material facts even though it could be done with technical correctness. That sworn affidavit was intended to convey to the licensing authority the belief that she should not be deprived of her license or otherwise faulted because she had driven a quarter of a century without a mishap.

The very nature of the mishaps and their number, three, suggest that she is temperamentally unfit to drive. Many drivers have had one accident such as her various mishaps. Many drivers have had more than one. But in all these hidden cases there was no other driver to share the blame. She was just a bad driver, that was all. This false and misleading statement was intended to conceal evidence to that effect from the consideration of the licensing authority.

What to Do About Polio

(This is the first of three articles by A.P. Science Editor Howard W. Blakeslee, explaining what is known about infantile paralysis, how you can take precautions against catching the disease, and what to do if it strikes your family.)

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, (Associated Press Science Editor)
New York, Aug. 3 (AP)—Children have had polio—infantile paralysis—since ancient times. Today a higher proportion recover without crippling.

This is the only gain, and all in the present century. The gain comes from better nursing, and not from anything else. Almost everyone has had polio, but only a few even become sick. How the disease works in most of us who don't get ill is entirely unknown.

But what happens in the sick is well known. It is in your spinal cord. This cord is the cable carrying nerves from the brain to branch out, like switchboard wires, to all parts of your body.

One set of nerves in this cord governs muscles. Polio chooses, for some mysterious reason, to attack these particular nerves and no others. These nerves are made of horn-shaped cells.

Polio damages or destroys horn cells. Among all nerves, these horn cells alone are unable to regenerate themselves. Once gone, they break the muscle-nerve cable for life.

Without these nerves in the spine, muscles shrink. No other part of your body is damaged.

Can Strike Any Point.
Polio can strike at any point along the spinal cable. If it hits high up, it paralyzes arms and hands. If in the mid-spine, polio hits the muscles of breathing. If low down, it paralyzes leg muscles.

There is an additional point of attack, in the "Bub," a rounded swelling the size of a thumb, at the top of your spine. This is called the brain stem. This is the point of polio brings most of the deaths.

The cause of polio is a virus, a very tiny particle made of protein. How this particle does its destruction is unknown.

Two kinds of polio virus are known. More are suspected. You can have polio more than once, one attack for each kind of virus.

In epidemics, those who recover without any bad effects, range from 40 to 70 per cent. Sometimes there will be 70 per cent complete recoveries without any governors as well as many business, labor and civic leaders.

In his letter to Admiral Byrd, Governor Dewey said:

"I would be happy to serve as a sponsor of the Iron Curtain Refugee Campaign. Your organization is filling a need which I have long felt and which I believe is actually a function of the government. It is a most important service to provide encouragement to those who are willing to stand up for freedom in the iron curtain countries and I wish you the greatest of success in the work."

Admiral Byrd, in replying to Governor Dewey, said that he was most encouraged "by the support which you and the other governors of the United States have given to our effort to raise funds for 100,000 CARE food packages and other essential relief for the recently escaped refu-

Governor Backs Refugee Campaign

New York—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey has consented to act as a sponsor of the Iron Curtain Refugee Campaign, of the International Rescue Committee, it was announced today by the campaign's headquarters at 103 Park avenue, New York.

The purpose of the Iron Curtain Refugee Campaign is to send 100,000 CARE food packages plus medical aid and other urgently needed relief to the recently-escaped refugees from the Communist-dominated countries of Europe. Admiral Richard E. Byrd is the chairman of the committee, and the sponsors include 28 state governors from Communist totalitarianism. Through you and through the other state governors the freedom-loving people of the United States are demonstrating that they will not forget their allies who have fought and suffered for democracy in Europe and who are today homeless because they refused to compromise with tyranny."

Gloria Tabacchi,
Carl Brancato Wed

Rosendale, Aug. 3.—The marriage of Miss Gloria Tabacchi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Tabacchi, to Carl Brancato, took place Sunday afternoon, July 31, in St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church. The Rev. John F. Kelly performed the ceremony. James Sweeney presided at the organ. Miss Louise Jablonski was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white slipper satin trimmed with Chantilly lace and made with a fitted bodice, bouffant skirt and long train circled with many rows of lace. Her double tiered veil of white tulle and lace was attached to a crown made of orange blossoms and lilacs of the valley. She carried a bouquet of orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Lucy Du Corte of New Jersey was maid of honor. The other attendants were Miss Jennie Carrado and Miss Rose Marie Stanton both of Kingston. They wore gowns of net and lace over tulle, and carried baskets filled with spring flowers. The wedding group created a rainbow effect with the bride in pure white, the maid of honor in lime green and the bridesmaids in lavender and mauve.

Joseph Hill, Jr., of Rosendale was the best man. The ushers were Robert Demarest and Jack Hoffman both of Rosendale.

A dinner and reception for 150 guests given by Mr. and Mrs. Leo Tabacchi was held at Sportsman's Park, Rosendale.

After a wedding trip to Lake George, Mr. and Mrs. Brancato will reside with Mr. and Mrs. Leo Tabacchi of Rosendale.

Mr. and Mrs. Brancato are graduates of Kingston High School and are both employed by Montgomery Ward and Co. of Kingston.

East Kingston Bazaar

East Kingston, Aug. 3.—St. Colman's Church has a bazaar scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, August 13-14, it has been announced by the Rev. Edmond V. Radford, pastor. Father Radford has elaborate plans also for two religious events, Sunday the 14th, Forty Hours Devotion and a celebration in honor of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Suppers & Food Sales

The Stone Ridge Methodist Church will sponsor a public cafeteria supper at the church on Thursday, August 4, at 5:30 p. m. The public is invited.

Graduates

One of the graduates at the recent commencement exercises of Albany Business College was Miss Mary J. Hyatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Hyatt of 52 Elmendorf street, to Michael Minutello of Brooklyn, on June 12. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Brown at St. Simons and Jude Church in Brooklyn.

Leotta-Minutello
Marriage Performed

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lace gown with an important Belgian hip-length veil and pink and white roses in a fan effect.

Miss Mary Leotta, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, also of New York, wore a lavender gown with yellow roses in a fan effect.

Viso Storrelli of Brooklyn was the best man.

A reception for 75 guests was held at the home of Mr. Minutello's sister, Mrs. Nicholas Paganini. Afterward Mr. and Mrs. Minutello left for a wedding trip to Miami Beach, Fla. They will make their home in Brooklyn.

The bride was graduated from Kingston High School and is employed by an export company in New York. Her husband served four years with the Air Transport Command in the Middle East and Europe during World War 2, transporting supplies to strategic areas. He was honorably discharged in February, 1946. He is employed as a foreman in the paper stock line in New York city.

Lapchick Recalls Old Days:

Joe Lapchick, an Original Celtic immortal and present coach of the New York Knickerbockers of the Basketball Association of America, doesn't let the heat wave or sentimentality affect his basketball philosophy.

"People expect me to be sentimental about the good old days . . . defend the kind of basketball played by the Original Celtics says Lapchick," but the modern game is much faster, the shooting far more spectacular and the sport, as a whole, far more entertaining."

Game Attracts Top Men:

"More and more top-ranking campus basketball players are turning to the professional court for the quick buck. This serves as a highly remunerative stopgap while the young man completes post graduate studies, prepares for a coaching career or seeks a spot in the business world. The player in the B.A.A. averages better than $1,000 a month."

George Mikan the Colossus:

"That one-man team, George Mikan, to my mind the greatest all-around player the game has yet seen, received $17,500 last season with the Minneapolis Lakers, plus additional revenue from endorsements and personal appearances. Other B.A.A. stars receive from $7,000 to $12,000."

"On the road these athletes are housed and fed in the best hotels, travel by Pullman or in big airplanes. The boys play in large arenas, under perfect conditions and with the best equipment. Everything is strictly first class."

The Days of Hustle and Borgmann:

Prof. Lapchick, without shedding a tear, recalls that this setup is a far cry from the old days with the Original Celtics. "Dutch" Dehnert, Pete Barry, Nat Hickock, Dave Banks, Nat Holman, Carl Husta and myself had no financial backers, no fancy pay," Lapchick reminisces. "Our transportation was a second hand automobile, and the hotel bill per man seldom exceeded $1.25 a day."

"For a five-month junket through the south, west and southwest, playing every night under all conditions, the Celtics averaged about $2,000."

"We divided the spoils equally, sometimes hit a basketball hot spot where we would take as high as $1,000. More than often it was closer to $125."

"But the old timers were great trouper and superb players. Despite discomforts, we had a million laughs and untold experiences. The pros of today like George Mikan, Joe Folsa, Max Zaslofsky are amazingly accurate with all sorts of shots, average 20 points a game."

"Nat Holman and Johnny Beckman had a great night when they made eight to 15 points. Benny Borgmann led the old American League in scoring a number of years with an average of about 11 points a game."

The Fabulous Skeets Wright:

"Why," continued Lapchick, "Skeets Wright, a great defensive whiz, used to break fast on the opening tip, twist in a quick field goal and then snarl at his opposing forward: 'I got my basket. Now, try and get yours.'"

"Bucky Harris, former manager of the New York Yankees baseball team, was a top ranking professional courtman a generation ago. Bucky once told me during a gabfest: 'I felt like killing any guy who scored on me.'"

"I don't know how Bucky or Skeets Wright would go about stopping Mikan. Though six feet, 10 inches, Mikan has the co-ordination of a smaller man. Last year he scored 1998 points in 60 games to average 23.3 points."

"And to think that we rival coaches devised all sorts of defenses to hold him under 30 points at night. The good old days? You can keep them."

Fernandez Forces Attorney to Drop Insanity Defense

New York, Aug. 3 (AP)—Raymond Fernandez—back-seat driver in his murder trial—has forced his lawyer to abandon an insanity defense.

"I'm not the guy who needs a psychiatrist," the scowling "lonely hearts" alying defendant told newsmen yesterday as his plea was switched for the second time in 24 hours.

"As court opened today, the defense for Fernandez again was a general denial of any part in the slaying of Mrs. Janet Fay, 66-year-old Albany, N. Y., widow, in Valley Stream, N. Y., last January 4.

Insanity still was the defense for his fat girl friend and co-defendant, Mrs. Martha Beck, 23.

After a conference with the obvious upset Fernandez yesterday, Defense Counsel Herbert E. Rosenberg told the court: "The defendant Fernandez requests that he be permitted to withdraw the plea of insanity."

It was not announced why the 34-year-old Fernandez—facing a possible death chair conviction—chose not to try the insanity escape.

With the switch in tactics, Rosenberg never got around to putting a final question mark to the incomprehensible question which he had propounded to a defense psychiatrist for two hours and 40 minutes on Monday.

The insanity defense for Fernandez came as a surprise on Monday. Originally, both he and Mrs. Beck had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity. But when the trial started, Rosenberg told the jury he would prove Mrs. Beck was insane and Fernandez had no part in the bludgeoning and strangulation of Mrs. Fay.

The slaying, and two others charged against the defendants in Michigan, allegedly grew out of a scheme to extract money from lonely women through mail romances.

Practically all of yesterday's court session was consumed by conferences in chambers with Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora, whispered conferences at the bench, and prosecution objections to Rosenberg's questioning of his psychiatrist, Dr. Richard E. Hoffman.

After Dr. Hoffman's long and

Two Are Injured In Autos' Collision

Two persons were injured slightly in an auto collision at Washington avenue and the Boulevard early this morning, according to the police.

The report at 2:15 a. m. said that Harold I. Avery, 37 Charlotte Place West, was headed south on Washington avenue and Norbert J. Bailey, 14 Bushnell avenue, was traveling east on the Boulevard when they collided.

Harold Avery suffered injuries to the left side of his face and Wallace Avery an injured lip, the report said.

Both were treated at Kingston Hospital.

Identity Is Sought

Troy, N. Y., Aug. 3 (AP)—Police sought today to identify a man whose body with a woman's stocking tied about the neck, was found floating in Wynantskill creek. Coroner Anthony Matera reported that "a possibility of murder exists."

Swimmers found the fully-clothed body yesterday at the foot of Erie street in downtown Troy. Matera said the man apparently had been in the water about a week. His body was badly decomposed. The stocking around the neck was not discovered until the clothing was removed.

Buyers Who Waited Purchasing Again At Higher Prices

New York, Aug. 3 (AP)—More businessmen are being pinched today because they apparently have waited too long to buy.

Inventories have been cut back so low, in some cases, that the buyers now have to come back into the market — at the sellers' terms. And prices are starting up again in some lines. Ironically, the rush to buy again, if it gains in volume, probably will give another boost to prices.

Industries reporting that customers are ordering again in pleasing quantities include cotton, rayon, and wool textiles. The once heavy inventories in coffee and heavy fuel oil have been worked off and prices are starting up. Copper, lead and zinc users have been back in the market for several weeks now, ending a buyers' strike of more than two months.

Non-ferrous metals prices already have gone up. So strong is the demand right now for copper that the trade is predicting another price rise sometime this week from the current quotation of 17 1/2 cents a pound. Until the price break in March copper brought 23 1/2 cents.

Hoping copper's strength this week is the return of government agents to the market, looking for metal for the government's strategic stockpile. So far they have been only shoppers, and have made no purchases, but their interest is spurring private consumers to get back into the market first. And demand for the metal is making pleasant news for producers.

Cotton textiles also have benefited from government action. The announcement Friday that the Agriculture Department will support the new cotton crop at around 29 1/2 cents a pound, only slightly under the support price for last year's crop, seems to have given just the jolt the buyers needed. They're back in the market this week in volume.

Cottons Go Up Again They figure that if raw cotton isn't down in price, because of government support, the price of cotton textiles must have reached its bottom level today.

Worth Street textile merchants, reporting one of the best demands for cotton goods in months, advanced the popular 80

Cottons Go Up Again They figure that if raw cotton isn't down in price, because of government support, the price of cotton textiles must have reached its bottom level today.

Worth Street textile merchants, reporting one of the best demands for cotton goods in months, advanced the popular 80 by 80 print cloth price 1/4 cent to 18 cents a yard.

They believe users' inventories have been depleted and that the buyers would have to come back into the market now anyway. Consumers have been delaying their buying for autumn to see if prices would fall farther. Worth Street says the buyers have overstayed their market and no longer have the whip hand.

However, some of the consumers point out that fall demand for goods usually picks up at just about this time, and they see this week's spurt in Worth Street business as a return to normal seasonal habits.

Demand for rayon knitted underwear fabric has increased, too, and the Covington, Va., plant of the Industrial Rayon Corp. this week returns to full production schedules. Work had been cut to 50 per cent in capacity in June.

The company says it has worked off its inventories of finished fabric, and demand now has increased substantially.

The men's and boy's knitwear industry in general expects unit sales this year to top last year's by more than 20 per cent, according to the president of Barclay Knitwear Co. Prices are about 20 to 25 per cent below last year's level.

Shirts, Hides Scarcer The National Shoe Manufacturers' Association, meeting here today, also finds inventories of hides and skins worrisome. John H. Waterson, economist for the group, says a close balance between supply and demand should stabilize the hide market for the rest of the year.

The glut of heavy fuel oil, which in the late winter sent fuel oil prices tumbling smartly, has apparently been worked off, too. Esso Standard Oil Co. recently advanced the price of this oil, used in industry and to power ships, by 15 cents a barrel in the states along the Gulf of Mexico. Today it is marking the price of the oil up 10 cents a barrel at all the Atlantic coast terminals.

The industry expects a sharp production of heavy fuel oil as sharply as possible during the last few months and now has supply and demand back in balance, oilmen say.

The huge mountains of coffee beans, which once led Brazil to buy them because they didn't sell them, also have disappeared. Traders say that production currently is running behind consumption. Part of this is due to the increased coffee drinking around the world; part to reduced coffee growing.

Any of the futures price of coffee in the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange hit a 63-year high mark for September delivery. This may send the grocer's price up again this fall.

Eccles Is Divorced Ogden, Utah, Aug. 3 (AP)—Marjorie S. Eccles, member of the Federal Reserve board in Washington, was divorced yesterday by Mayle Y. Eccles. Mrs. Eccles was granted a settlement of a net income in excess of $10,000 a year after taxes. The plaintiff charged Eccles had treated her "cruelly to the extent of causing mental stress." She said he had lived apart from her for eight years. They were married in Logan, Utah, July 9, 1913. They have two sons and a daughter, all married.

Monk Has Way With Cals and Is Good Dishwasher

New York, Aug. 3 (AP)—Visitors have been flocking to the John Tatal home in Queens to see a monkey that washes dishes and has a way with the women.

Mrs. Tatal says the monkey also is a good alarm clock. Mr. Tatal says the monkey likes cigars and screwdrivers, though he doesn't know why.

"You could put a million dollars on the table for my monkey," Mrs. Tatal said yesterday, "and I wouldn't take it."

She said she has owned the monkey, whose name is Mickey, for nine years, since he was three. "Every time when young pretty girls come by, he knocks on the window," Mrs. Tatal said. "When older women come by he doesn't give them a second look."

In the morning when she sleeps (Tatal said), she said, the monkey awakens her by knocking on his cage.

She went to get the monkey to give a reporter a demonstration. While she was gone, Mr. Tatal said.

"That monkey also likes to play. If he sees a dish of a cat but it in his fur. I don't know why."

Mrs. Tatal brought the monkey and placed him beside a sink filled with dishes and soapy water. The monkey ate some soap suds and then went to work washing dishes.

"If you let him, he'll stay there and wash dishes for two hours," said Mrs. Tatal.

She placed the monkey in the window. Several older women passed. The monkey turned his head. Three pretty girls came along, and the monkey stared and made clucking noises.

Then Mrs. Tatal took the monkey back upstairs, and Mr. Tatal said.

"Once that monkey got one of my screwdrivers and before I knew it he had pried a board loose from that window. He likes carpenter tools, though I don't know why."

When the stream of visitors kept coming, Mrs. Tatal said: "No Mickey just can't do it any more. So many people have been coming all day, he's washed and washed and he's so excited. He never breaks a dish. He is so careful, but if he gets excited he's sure to throw a dish at you."

Training Pace Is Stepped Up for Guard

Pine Camp, N. Y., Aug. 3 (AP)—The training pace was stepped up today as New York National Guardsmen went into the fourth day of their annual two-week session.

More than 10,000 troops of the 27th Infantry Division, New York National Guard, and the 98th Division, Organized Reserves, are in camp.

Yesterday, they took tests in small unit tactical training and intelligence training and witnessed a range fire demonstration. Most units also marched two and a half miles.

Maj. Gen. Karl F. Hunsauer, commander of the New York National Guard, was scheduled to arrive today for an inspection.

LEGAL NOTICES

The Board of Trustees of School District No. 6, Town of Ulster (Emma Wygant School) advise bids on 30 tons of coal (backhaul) for delivery before Sept. 1, 1949. Bids should be addressed to Clerk of the Board, Emma Wygant School, Flatbush, N. Y., no later than August 10, 1949.

PUBLIC NOTICE
ADIRONDACK TRANSIT LINES, INC., 485 Broadway, Kingston, N. Opponent's Mistake Works to Advantage

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority
Written for NBA Service

Not long ago I met "the cement-mixing priest," Father Francis J. Schlindwein, pastor of St. Boniface Church in Erie, Pa. His interest in children and what he has done for the children of Erie stirred my admiration. When he took over this church, there were only 41 children in the school. Father Schlindwein decided to build a bigger, more modern school. Today there are three buses belonging to the school and 221 children in attendance.

I was telling Father that years ago Ray Eisendorf and the boys in Erie used to run a geranium tournament. He thought it was a good idea and wants me to plan to run one in Erie this fall for the benefit of the school. Card parties are an economical way to raise money and they are good pastime for the young people.

A nice thing about bridge is that sometimes making a mistake will work out to your advantage rather than your loss. Take for example today's hand! The opening lead of the five of spades was won by declarer with the king. The king of hearts was cashed and the eight-spot led to the ace. A small heart was returned and trumped by declarer with the ace of spades. The jack of spades was overtaken with dummy's queen, the king of clubs cashed, then the king of clubs was played. East played low and declarer went up with the ace. West, who thought the declarer was going to finesse the ten-spot, tried to take the trick with the queen. When he found that the ace had been played he cried "murder"—but if he had not made this play, declarer would have made six odd. The next trick would have put West in the lead and he would have had to lead into declarer's ace-queen of diamonds.

Sings August 4

Tom Scott, "The American Troubadour," will present a program of American folk songs at New Paltz State Teachers College at an assembly Thursday morning, August 4. Mr. Scott is a singer, composer, and arranger. He is a member of Fred Waring's staff and has arranged over a hundred folk songs for publication. His compositions have been performed by leading musicians and orchestras, the most notable being, the New York Philharmonic's performance of his symphonic tone poem, "Hornpipe and Chantey."

Mr. Scott combines real, experienced musicianship with an intelligent appreciation of America's native folk songs. He believes that there is no more eloquent expression of the spirit of America than its own native music. His New Paltz program will include selections from four different types of folk songs—work songs, songs of love and play, story-telling songs, and songs of worship.

Tom Scott is brought to the State Teachers College by the Summer Student Council.

Chichester Firm Sued in Accident

New York, Aug. 3 (Special)—A suit for damages totaling $36,500 was filed in Federal Court here Tuesday against the Chichester Wood Products Corporation, of Chichester, and Barnett Epstein, also of Chichester, by Mrs. William E. Hendrix of Paterson, N. J., for a traffic accident in Paterson last January 18 in which Mrs. Hendrix was injured.

According to the complaint, Mrs. Hendrix was riding in her husband's car when it collided with the Chichester firm's vehicle, driven by Epstein, an employee. The defendants are charged with negligence and full responsibility for the accident.

Mrs. Hendrix, who sustained head and body injuries in the accident, according to the complaint, asks $25,000, and her husband asks $11,500 for medical expenses and damage done to his car.

Hurley Meeting
The Hurley Grange No. 963 will hold its regular meeting at the Hurley school auditorium on Thursday, August 4, at 8:30 p. m. A special program has been arranged.

Bad for Elephants

Washington, Aug. 3 (AP)—Things looked dark today for elephants who like to ride the Wochawken ferry across the Hudson river. An Interstate Commerce Commission examiner recommended new forces for the ferry, which runs from New York City to Wochawken, N. J. Among the suggested changes: Elephants, who have been riding for $1.40, would have to pay $2.80. Not in peanuts, either.

City Planning . . .

professional and technical assistance, may proceed to assemble data, analyze facts, trends and influences, prepare maps, charts, and statistics toward the development of a comprehensive, long range plan and program for the City of Kingston, in harmony with its social and economic needs to promote its physical, commercial and industrial advancement. Since the functions of a City Planning Commission are concerned with a period of time in the future, its operation must be carried on in the duplicate the activities of any current administrative agency, but serves to assist and guide their future activities to make the attainment of their goal easier and surer. It is also well to note that the creation of a planning commission by the legislative body does not delegate any of the Council's power or authority, but simply makes the planning commission an agency responsible to the Council, to act as a servant of the Council.

Because the subject of City Planning is a broad, vital subject, covering a wide and varied field of municipal operation, having numerous, far-reaching benefits, it is only possible to sketch the subject in a general way in this letter to indicate its scope and benefits which is done on the attached sheet.

I earnestly recommend to your Honorable Board, the legislative establishment under Article 3 of the General City Law, of a City Planning Commission for the City of Kingston at the earliest possible date. I would suggest that your appropriate committee of your Board consult with the Corporation Council and City Engineer toward that end.

The subject of City Planning should have careful and complete study so that its effects are fully understood and I would suggest holding a public hearing so that all interested citizens and groups can express themselves.

Very truly yours,

OSCAR V. NEWKIRK, Mayor

Brief listing of scope and benefits of city planning commission, Kingston, N. Y.:

TRANSPORTATION—to improve industrial and commercial development and efficiency.

TRAFFIC—to promote highway safety and prevent business and industrial blight.

STREET SYSTEM—to improve accessibility of pattern and use for traffic flow, pedestrian and abutting land use for future needs.

STREET DESIGN—to establish economy in design of types to meet future demands.

UTILITIES—to avoid duplication, obsolescence and replacement by guided land use.

REFUSE AND WASTE—to improve health by comprehensive systems adequate for the future.

RECREATION AND PARKS—to improve health by rational extension and development to meet future needs.

SCHOOLS—to provide adequate, convenient system coordinated with future development.

FINANCE—to advance planning of financing of improvements anticipates future expenditures as to basic necessity and develops sound financial policy.

INVESTORS—to provide security for investors, banks and home owners through protection from depreciation and undesirable land use and building.

LAND VALUE—by preserving land values through proper land use it may establish modern scientific and equitable method of evaluation.

WASTE LAND—reclamation of land use of waste areas.

HOUSING—to improve health and avoid blight by land use guidance to adequate, modern public and private housing.

INDUSTRY—to prevent industrial and commercial decay by the rational development of land use patterns and efficient facilities for future demand.

INDUSTRIAL DECENTRALIZATION—to define resources and sites in connection with decentralization and relocation of large industries now underway.

ECONOMIC—to provide a reservoir of designed public improvement projects scheduled to meet emergencies and economic needs.

REZONING—to modernize the 21-year-old Zoning Code to preserve values and set up land use patterns.

NATURAL RESOURCES—to define our natural resources and set up plans for their development.

Twelfth Ward Alderman Martin said the mayor's letter afforded him "a great deal of pleasure," because he felt that such a commission would be an asset to the city, and he had previously suggested such a letter as the mayor had written to the councilmen.

Petition Is Presented
A petition containing 31 names and complaining against expanded operations at the Ashley Welding Machine & Iron Co. at Henry and Sterling streets, was referred to the Laws and Rules committee and the Corporation Council.

It contained a resolution by Tenth Ward Alderman James J. Carroll asking council action "for the purpose of correcting the condition complained of."

The document explained that the plant operates to the rear of 44 and 46 Sterling street, that the "fumes surrounding" it is in a residential district and at the time the zoning ordinance became effective its business was limited.

It has since expanded and "became a nuisance to the residents living thereabouts," the petition said, and it charged that "huge piles of scrap metal and debris are being backed in and out of the driveway between 44 and 46 Sterling street," and others park on the street.

It complained that welding torches are being used in the street and driveway and "sparks enter" the premises at 44 and 46 Sterling street, and the pounding of metal creates a tremendous noise. It said gasoline is carried in cans through the driveway and metal is left there.

The petition said the residents felt that operation of the plant is contrary to the zoning laws and to the rules and regulation of the fire department and it asked the Tenth Ward Alderman to take up the complaint with the council and any board of boards having control.

Claims Are Referred
Claims by Mary E. Schick and Ida S. Rogers of 545 Abeel street for damages caused by overflow sewage were referred to the Auditing Committee and corporation council.

The Schick claim is for $555.50 and the Rogers claim for $558.75, and each contained a list of property, clothing and furniture damaged, which they say resulted from a flooded condition on Dec. 31, 1948

Woodstock Garden Club Meets; Will Exhibit

Woodstock, Aug. 3—The Woodstock Garden Club met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Henry Morton Robinson. A program devoted to "Planning Garden Club Programs" included material talks and papers appropriate to the various seasons.

Miss Rosalie Willson described the preparation of limestone for use in the garden and Mrs. Adolph Heckerth read an article on program suggestions.

A postcard message from Mrs. Esther Slizer, who has been visiting in Amsterdam, Holland, was addressed to Mrs. J. Frank Lynch, president. It reads: "Please inform the garden club members that I have the promised bulbs. The flowers are unbelievably beautiful and I have not seen a single weed since I arrived in Holland. Am leaving for Switzerland Saturday."

Mrs. Roland d'Albis and Mrs. Walter McTeligue assisted the hostess in serving refreshments during a social hour which followed the meeting.

Several members will attend the lecture pertaining to the judging of flower arrangements and awarding prizes to be given by Professor Fox at 10 a. m. at the Ulster County Fair, to be held August 17th in Forsyth Park, Kingston.

Maverick Concert
Woodstock, Aug. 3—Also Pig-notti and Patricia Hammond, violinists; Anita Schmedes, violinist; Robert Collins, cellist; and Shirley Barsik, pianist, will be the guest artists Sunday, August 7, at 4 p. m. in the Maverick Concert Hall.

The program which will be presented includes Beethoven's C Minor String Quartet and Piano Quintet in E flat major by Schumann.

An exhibition of photographs by Adrian Siegel will be shown. Siegel is a well-known photographer whose work has been featured in national and international publications. He is also a member of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

the local chapter, United World Federalists have been informed by their officers with regard to a resolution introduced last week in the Senate by a group of 18 senators. The resolution reads: "It should be a fundamental objective of the foreign policy of the United States to support and strengthen the United Nations, and to seek its development into a world federation open to all nations, with defined and limited powers adequate to preserve peace and prevent the violation through the enactment, interpretation and enforcement of world law."

This resolution sponsored by 90 congressmen, was introduced in the House of Representatives June 7.

Guest Artist

Woodstock, Aug. 3—Mildred Meditz, soprano, will be the guest artist with the Woodstock String Quartet Friday evening, August 5, when the concert by the quartet will be given in the Wittenberg Methodist Hall. Miss Meditz will be accompanied by the prominent pianist, Isaac Sass.

Pearl SS Gallery

Woodstock, Aug. 3—The Pearl SS Gallery is currently presenting an exhibition by The Printmakers. The show opened Tuesday, August 2, and will continue through a day August 17.

The group includes Abrams, Foxberg, Hans, Hansen, P. Kahn, W. Kahn, Kurzen, Moy, Rief, and Rose. The Printmakers were formed by a group of young artists having a mutually sympathetic approach to modern art.

They are bound together by the feeling that the print is another important outlet to their art expression. This exhibition can reveal but a small part of the results of much experimentation, technical research, and work made necessary in a new world opening up before us," said Pearl Schechter, owner of the gallery.

Art Association To Open Exhibit

Woodstock, Aug. 3—The mid-summer show of painting and sculpture will be opened at the Woodstock Art Gallery Friday, August 5, and continue to August 17. This exhibition was designed to include 10 jurors elected by the members at the semi-annual meeting who in turn were to select two artists.

The gala opening which includes a reception for this show will be held Saturday, August 6, from 5:30 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. It is understood that the day has been changed because of numerous requests from numerous residents who do not arrive here until Friday evening which prevents them from attending the usual Friday reception. The public is invited to attend the Saturday reception, when it is expected that most of the artists represented will be present.

Exhibitors will be Judson Smith, Edward Chavez, Lucille Blanch, Joe Presser, Jack Taylor, Andre Ruelian, Albert Heckman, Eugene Ladins, Wendy Jones, Stewart Edie, Carolyn Henebavin, Agnes Hart, Nicholas Marsicano, Ronald Wilson, Peggy Dodd, Henry Mattson, Arnold Bianchi, Charles Rosen, Eugene Spelcher, Jenny Magalan, Jack Levine, Ethel Magalan, Ruth Gikow, Marion Greenwood, Cecile Forman, Rollin Hampton, Ricky Sanchez, Harry Teddie, Signe Menkes, Anton Refregier, Georgiana Klitzinger, William Pachner, painters; and Hannah Small, Carl Walters, Raoul Hague, Paul Fiene, Nathaniel Kaz, Archipenko, Amy Small, Sam Goodman, Tom Penning and Alfeo Faggi.

Married by Justice

Woodstock, Aug. 3—Almon F. Frome, 31, Chateaugay street, Fort Covington, and Miss Hazel Gellinger, 25, 31 Rockland street, Malone, were married Sunday afternoon by Justice of the Peace George J. Braundly. Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Rose, West Hurley, were witnesses to the ceremony.

Village Notes

Woodstock, Aug. 3—Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Carey drove to Camp Sequoia last Sunday to visit their respective sons, Kenneth, Jr. and Lee.

About 75 persons attended the square dance given Sunday evening by Sam Eskin in his barn. Mrs. Cathy Chase gave a dinner party Monday evening at her home, "Robinwood," in honor of Forrest Goodenough and Carl Hubbell who were celebrating their birthdays. It was also the day on which Carl Hubbell's new comic strip "Merrie Chase" made its debut throughout the country. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Siegel, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Berkowitz, Mr. and Mrs. John Siegel, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Mr. and Mrs. David Huffine, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Walters, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Walters, Mr. and Mrs. Konrad Cramer, Miss Aileen Cramer, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boswell, Mr. and Mrs. William Pachner, Mr. Thompson, the Misses Wilma Hervey and Nan Mason.

Champanier, deals "with mental images" in his painting "Horse Image" is an example of this period. The mechanical device resembles a horse, the red color conjures up the memory of a red jacket of the rider in a fox hunt, an association with the horse image.

Staccatoism being a subjective art as the opposite of objective realism, in truth man's mind is more subjective than objective. Man's musing and day dreaming are in this domain," he says.

On exhibit are Indian Mountain Road, Woodstock Interior, Claude, Agnes Scholcher, Norma, Provincial Interior, Horse Image (loaned by Mrs. Augustus Bardo), Engineers Image, Staccato Civilization, Fisherman's Cabin, Iligh Falls Road, Portrait, and Logs and Flowers (loaned by Walter Reynolds Storey).

Art Students League
Woodstock, Aug. 3—An exhibition representative of work being done by students at the Art Students League will be shown in the school's gallery beginning today and continuing through August 26, when the school will close for the season.

The public is invited to attend the exhibition daily, Mondays through Fridays from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

One-Man Show At Mitchell Gallery

Woodstock, Aug. 3—A reception was held Monday evening at the Mitchell Gallery for A. A. Champanier, when his retrospective exhibition was opened to the public. The exhibition will continue at the gallery to August 14.

This retrospective show is described by the artist as "falling into three periods. First, the Satirical period represented by one painting 'Wine,' the second the Realistic period executed in Woodstock from 1926 to about 1932, and the third period Staccatoism, is the latest. It proves that the painter should be in a state of flux rather than static. Staccatoism, explains Mr.
